

Wisconsin's No Call list MUST not be weakened. Instead, it should be strengthened and expanded. I am thoroughly disgusted with all the telemarketers, charities, polsters, and others that call me. They tie up my phone at all hours, seven days per week - even though I have been on the No Call List since the beginning. One day this last fall, I came home to 13 phone messages supporting the same local candidate, in addition to a number of calls supporting the national candidates. I certainly do not want to receive calls from banks with which I have stopped doing business. Nor do I want these calls on my cell phone and then have to pay the air time for them. I know a number of people in Wisconsin, friends and family members, who now only have cell phones, and I am considering going the same route. However my son has started receiving these same telemarketing calls on his cell phone. Please let us in Wisconsin keep the strongest No Call List in the country, and help us make it even better and stronger. My phones (home and cell) are for my convenience, not the convenience of persons who want to disturb and annoy me. If they want to sell me something, they can take out an ad, or send it in the mail. I will never buy anything from someone who calls me on the phone.
